

THE UNIVERSITY CODE

M E S S A G E

Enshrined in the University Code are the standards, policies, and processes that protect the welfare of all members of the PUP community. Reflective of the philosophy and values shared among students, faculty members, and employees, this Code shall be adopted to serve as our implementing guidelines towards accountable, transparent, and professional decision-making and governance. Most importantly, the University aspires that this Code, which is a product of hard work and passion, to be the vessel that will carry the University towards becoming truly world-class.

EMANUEL C. DE GUZMAN, PHD
President

FOREWORD

This 2017 Revised University Code of the Polytechnic University of the Philippines (PUP) is an updated version of the original Code drafted in the 1970s prior to the conversion of the Philippine College of Commerce as a polytechnic university.

The revision process was long and rigorous, formally initiated when the University Code Review Committee was formed way back in 2012, and pursued over the years though with certain intermittence when it had to give way to other equally pressing tasks. There were drafting and redrafting of the revised version done by the previous Committees. Their outputs were indeed helpful in having the draft of the Code's final form completed by the latest review committee who took on the task in late 2016. After a series of further consultations with stakeholders, the draft of the revised Code was approved by the Board of Regents at its 156th Regular Meeting held on September 25, 2017, without prejudice to having further amendments as needed.

Hand in hand with the revised Code's restructured contents, there are specific provisions which were updated in accordance with the legal bases currently governing the institution. The Code likewise reflects the expansion and developments in PUP's curricular programs, non-academic services and administrative responsibilities gained over the past four decades. Strengthening the endurance of the Code in the face of internal sectoral realignments or streamlining of curricular programs and administrative support units was another guidepost in the drafting and rewriting processes. Hence the user of this Code may notice that instead of having the diverse operating units presented in accordance with their current sectoral alignments or positions in the organizational chart, they were discussed as services or cluster of services (as in Article 13) which should be expected from the University in whatever administrative platform or organizational configuration called for by a given developmental period.

It is the top intention of this 2017 Revised University Code to remain faithful to the pro-people commitment of the University and at the same time capture the ethical and legal standards which guide the offices and the members of the PUP Community in their decisions and actions vis-à-vis the current institutional and national contexts.

Executive Vice President
Chairman, University Code Review Committee

The five concentric circles are white because it symbolizes purity.

The Pylon is a triad of marble pillars. It was erected at the entrance of the PUP Sta. Mesa Main Campus in the 1970s. The Pylon originally stood for the true, the good and the beautiful. However since 1987, it also became the symbol of strength, excellence and wisdom.

A non-regular member of the faculty, except part-time instructor, shall be hired on invitation basis subject to the faculty requirement of the program.

Non-regular faculty appointment is contractual in nature, that is, on a per term or semestral basis, thus no employer-employee relationship between the faculty and the University exists. Section 2. Qualifications

All appointments to the faculty shall be made strictly on the basis of merit and fitness. No religious or political test shall be required, nor shall religious and political beliefs of the faculty of the university be made a matter of examination or inquiry.

Members of the faculty of the university shall be exempt from any civil service examination as a requisite for appointment and must be subject to existing laws.

However, faculty members teaching courses with board examination must be board passers. Every recommendation for appointment or promotion shall be accompanied by a complete statement of the qualifications, training, service record and such other matters which may be required by the rules of the university and existing laws.

Section 3. Appointments

Appointments and/or promotions in the faculty shall be made by the President in accordance with the university policies and/or criteria and subject to confirmation of the Board of Regents.

The competencies of a new faculty member shall be determined by the Dean or Branch Director after consultation with the Department Chair using as basis the criteria approved for the purpose.

All non-regular faculty appointees who are connected with other branches of the government shall present written permits from the head of their respective departments and shall state, when applicable, the total number of teaching hours and/or studying hours a week they have in other schools.

No person shall be eligible for appointment or reinstatement as a regular member of the faculty of this university during the term for which he has been elected to any political office.

No person who has been defeated as a candidate for any political office in an election shall be eligible for appointment or reinstatement as a regular member of the faculty within a year after the election.

No person shall be appointed as faculty on full-time basis, if said person is employed in any other university or college, provided, that, when the immediate requirements of the university justify the appointment and no other applicant approximates the needed high professional and scholastic competence, such other person may be appointed on a part-time basis, until another, who possesses the desired competence and is not connected with other educational institutions, is available and willing to accept such appointment.

On the recommendation of the Department Chair and the Dean of the College/Graduate School/Institute and with the endorsement of the Vice President for Academic Affairs and the approval of the President and the Board of Regents, a professor or associate may be permitted to exchange his position for a period of not more than one year with a professor of approximately equal rank in another college or university.

Whenever the circumstances of the case so warrant, the President shall recommend to the Board of Regents that sufficient allowance, in addition to his regular salary, be given to the exchange professor of the Polytechnic University of the Philippines.

On the recommendation of the Dean and endorsement of the Vice President for Academic Affairs, the President may appoint a visiting professor subject to the confirmation of the Board.

The President may appoint, subject to the confirmation of the Board of Regents, any faculty member to the rank of University Professor subject to the availability of the position and existing rules and regulations on appointment of faculty.

The University Professor may be assigned to do research work, give lectures or conduct seminar on the subject or field of his specialization in any college or unit of the university; and he shall be directly accountable to the University President.

Section 4. Compensation

Regular and non-regular members of the faculty shall receive compensation in accordance with the salary scale approved by the Board of Regents and/or in accordance with existing laws, rules and regulations.

Non-regular faculty members shall be paid for each hour of actual service and for such other compensable services in accordance with existing laws and policies approved by the Board of Regents.

Request for permission to teach and/or study should, however, be secured at least one week before the start of the school term, in accordance with existing rules and regulations.

Section 5. Promotion

In determining promotions among the faculty, careful consideration shall be given to the following factors: at least a very satisfactory efficiency rating, teaching ability of the candidate, research competence and productivity, scholarly performance, dedication to service, positive evidence of educational interest and marked academic growth, moral integrity and good personal character and conduct, and potential for growth. No person may be appointed or promoted to full professorship, unless his record shows outstanding achievements in scholarship.

Section 6. Academic Freedom

Members of the teaching staff shall enjoy academic freedom; provided, however, that no faculty member in the university shall directly or indirectly inculcate sectarian tenets and/or political partisanship in any of the teachings under penalty of dismissal by the Board of Regents.

Academic freedom is the right of the teacher to teach his subject of specialization according to his best lights; to hold, in other subjects, such ideas as he believes sincerely to be right; and to express his opinions on public questions in a manner that shall not interfere with his duties as a member of the faculty, or that shall not be adverse to his loyalty to the college or university that employs him. Within this specific framework which should be interpreted broadly, the following principles are hereby declared:

- a. The university shall not impose any limitation upon the teacher's freedom in the exposition of his own subject in the classroom or in speeches and publications;
- b. The university shall not place any restraint upon the teacher's freedom in the choice of subjects for research and investigation undertaken on his own initiative;
- c. The university shall recognize that the teacher in speaking or writing outside of the institution on subjects beyond the scope of his field of study, is entitled to the same freedom and is subject to the same responsibility as attached to all other citizens with due restraint;
- d. The university shall, as a center of higher learning, stimulate and encourage the pursuit of truth, in every way possible;
- e. It is understood, however, that the University assumes no responsibility for views expressed by members of its staff, and the faculty members themselves should, when necessary, make it clear that they are expressing only their personal opinions or beliefs.

No member of the teaching staff shall be removed without due process of law.

Section 7. Tenure

The initial appointment of any faculty may be temporary in nature except for those initially appointed as instructors whose cases are governed by the preceding article. To be a regular faculty member, one should have the necessary academic qualification to teach with a master's degree in the field of specialization.

Appointment is automatically cancelled upon failure of the appointee to report for duty one month after appointment, without the President's written permission.

Section 8: Study Grants

Faculty members may apply for study grants subject to existing University guidelines. All candidates for study grants shall undergo a thorough physical and medical examination and those found possessing such symptoms as might seriously affect their health and thus impair their usefulness as students may not be considered.

Regular or partial grantees, shall sign a contract binding themselves to such regulations as the Board of Regents may promulgate.

Section 9: Training and Development

The University recognizes the role of its human resource in the achievement of its goals and objectives and prioritizes its development through the provision of trainings, seminars and other related activities.

The training and development program of the Polytechnic University of the Philippines shall be implemented by the Training Section of the Human Resource Management Department in collaboration with the unit tasked to support the continuing professional development of teaching and non-teaching personnel. The program should contribute in reinforcing the knowledge, enhancing the skills and competencies, and developing the behavior of the human resource of the University for improved effectiveness at work and in their respective professions.

The implementation of the training program is subject to the approval of the University President upon recommendation of the Vice President for Administration. The University encourages academic and administrative personnel to attend local and/or international conventions, seminars, conferences, symposia and similar gatherings sponsored by academic institutions, government and non-government/private organizations subject to the existing University policies and guidelines.

The funding of the training and development program of the university and the participation of the faculty and staff in educative events such as conventions, seminars, conferences, symposia and similar non-training gatherings on official time shall be subject to the approval of the University President and to the related Budget Circulars issued by the Department of Budget and Management (DBM).

Section 10: Teaching Load

A fulltime faculty member is required to carry a teaching load of fifteen (15) hours a week. The said teaching load may, however, be reduced in case the faculty is designated with other administrative position, committee work, or is officially tasked with research, creative writing, or other productive scholarship.

Whenever conditions in the University are such that the foregoing rules on teaching load are inapplicable, the President can make proper exceptions or modifications.

No honorarium or extra compensation for overload teaching shall be allowed unless with proper approval of the President.

A regular faculty member may accept teaching load assigned by another campus outside of his regular station provided that the mother college/branch/campus of the faculty member has given its approval. The said teaching load may be counted as overload for which the faculty shall be entitled to an honorarium or extra compensation in accordance with pertinent laws and rules prescribed by the Board of Regents.

Section 11: Working Hours

Full-time members of the faculty shall be required to render 25 hours a week on campus. However, the President may, under certain conditions, require them to render more than 25 hours but not exceeding 40 hours a week.

Each member of the faculty shall be available for consultation at least five hours a week during regular office hours. The Department Chair, in consultation with the faculty member, shall determine at the beginning of every semester the specific time of the day when the consultation hours shall be.

Faculty members with administrative assignments or designations, hence with reduced teaching loads, shall be required to render 40 hours a week service.

Section 12: Service Report

All academic officials and faculty members performing either academic or administrative functions or both shall be required to record their time services in the prescribed form (Form 48). The duly accomplished form shall be submitted to Human Resource Management Department at the end of each month through the Office of the Dean.

Section 13: Retirement Privileges

Retired members of the faculty shall enjoy university library privileges and shall receive upon request publications of the university which are furnished to the faculty generally. They may also be entitled to such other privileges which in the opinion of the President, the university is in a position to grant, and they shall be invited to participate in major university programs and activities.

Upon request of the Dean or Director, and subject to the provision of law a retired official or faculty member may be hired as consultant and detailed by the President to some pending academic project of program or to a special activity of the university.

Section 14: Resignation

No resignation tendered by a member of the faculty shall be considered unless notice thereof has been given to the President through channels at least thirty days before the resignation takes effect.

The above rules shall not apply to resignation on account of serious illness, or when, in the judgment of the President, it is in the interest of the University that the resignation be accepted to take effect immediately. Acceptance of a resignation does not carry with it any waiver of the financial or property and other obligations to the university of the person concerned.

Section 15. The University shall have a Faculty Manual or Handbook which shall be a compendium of relevant information on faculty concerns and interests, their rights, obligations, duties and responsibilities.

Section 16. The University shall have a faculty directory. The members of the faculty shall fill out every year, the prescribed form in connection with the faculty directory to be kept in the office of the Vice President for Academic Affairs.

ARTICLE 18. THE ADMINISTRATIVE STAFF

Section 1: Appointment

Appointments to positions in the administrative staff shall be in accordance with the Civil Service Laws, policies and regulations of the university.

Section 2. Tenure

Appointments in the administrative staff shall either be permanent, temporary, substitute or emergency.

A permanent appointment shall be issued to those who meet the qualifications prescribed by the civil service laws, rules and regulations, and the policies of the university. An applicant for an administrative staff position should pass the six-month probationary period before being appointed to a permanent position.

In case of a need to fill immediately a vacant position, temporary appointment may be issued to a staff who does not meet all the qualifications prescribed by the civil service laws, rules and regulations, and the policies of the university. Temporary appointments shall only be for twelve months but may be renewed.

A substitute appointment is issued to one who is hired to take the place of one who is on leave and such appointment shall be terminable upon the return of the incumbent. A substitute appointment should not exceed 12 months but may be renewed.

Emergency appointment with a stated period of time shall be issued to those whose services are needed in the interest of the service. Persons who hold such appointment do not enjoy tenure and therefore their appointment may be terminated anytime. This type of appointment may be renewed every quarter of the year.

Section 3. Compensation

All administrative officers and employees shall be paid salaries or wages as fixed by existing laws, rules and regulations.

Section 4: Working Hours

Administrative staff of the university shall render forty (40) hours of day service a week in accordance with law. Appointments to render services in the night school may also be made as deemed necessary.

As a general rule all university officials and personnel performing administrative functions shall record their time of service using the prescribed automated device for this purpose (e.g. the Bundy clock, biometrics, and other similar devices), unless otherwise exempted by the President from the use of such time recording device. In such case, the time of service shall be duly recorded in writing by the personnel on the prescribed form (Form 48).

When the interest of the university so warrants, the proper university authorities may require any official/personnel to render overtime service.

Section 5: Promotions

Whenever a vacancy exists in any position in the regular force, the Civil Service and the existing university policy on promotions shall be applied.

ARTICLE 19. LEAVE PRIVILEGES

Section 1: General Provisions

Leave of absence in the university shall be classified as follows:

- a. Teacher's leave;
- b. Cumulative Leave (Vacation-Sick Leave);
- c. Maternity/Paternity Leave;
- d. Military Service Leave; and
- e. Special Leave

Section 2: Teacher's Leave

Full-time members of the faculty who do not normally perform administrative functions shall be on a teacher's leave basis. They shall render service for only forty weeks of the calendar year, and shall be entitled to two weeks Christmas vacation and ten weeks long vacation during summer with full pay for such vacation period, less deductions for proportionate reduction of vacation due to absence(s) without pay during the school year, if any.

The inter-semester period shall not be a vacation for the faculty members but shall, for the purpose of giving them time to grade examination papers, prepare reports of students' grades, clear up all other pending academic and committee work, and help in the registration for the following semester.

Service credits may be granted to faculty members on teacher's leave basis for services rendered by them during vacation period and/or non-working days; provided, that such services were duly authorized by proper authorities.

Service credits may be used for purposes of the following:

- a. To offset authorized absences due to illness of the faculty or any member of his immediate family;
- b. To offset deduction for proportionate reduction of vacation with pay;
- c. To offset absences without pay to maternity leave.

Such service credits are not commutable and any unused service credits are automatically forfeited upon separation from the government service.

No vacation salary shall be paid to a faculty member who has been separated from the service by dismissal for cause.

Section 3: Cumulative (Vacation-Sick) Leave

Vacation and sick leave shall be granted to members of the faculty who regularly perform administrative functions and to officers, employees and laborers, whether permanent or temporary including emergency workers.

After six months of continuous and satisfactory service, the qualified faculty and administrative personnel mentioned in the preceding article shall be entitled to 15-day vacation leave and 15-day sick leave of absence with full pay, exclusive of Saturdays, Sundays, and holidays, for each year of service.

Vacation leave and sick leave shall be cumulative and any part thereof shall not be taken within the calendar year in which it was earned but may be carried over to the succeeding years; and any officer or employee referred to herein who shall voluntarily resign or be separated from the service through no fault of his own, shall be entitled to the commutation of all accumulated vacation and/or sick leave to his credit.

Provided, that the President may in his discretion authorize the commutation of the salary that would be received during the period of vacation and sick leave of any appointed officer, employee, faculty, or laborer of the University and direct its payment on or before the beginning of such leave from the fund out of which the salary would have been paid;

Provided, furthermore, that no person whose leave has been commuted following the separation from the service, shall be re-appointed or re-employed in the university before the expiration of the commuted leave unless the first refunds the money value of the unexpired portion of the leave commuted, subject to availability of funds.

Vacation leave may be enjoyed for any cause provided the employee's service can be spared without detriment to the service. Sick leave, however, may be granted only on account of sickness on the part of the employee concerned or of any member of his immediate family, not due to immoral habits, intemperance or willful misconduct.

Section 4: Maternity Leave

Maternity leave shall be granted to female members of the faculty, officers and employees as provided for under Omnibus Laws on Leave and subject to the following conditions:

- a. Permanent employees who have rendered two or more years of continuous service (under regular appointment) shall be entitled to sixty (60) days maternity leave with full pay;
- b. Permanent employees who have rendered less than two years of continuous service shall be entitled to sixty (60) days maternity leave with half pay;
- c. Temporary employees, including emergency employees who have rendered two or more years of continuous service shall be entitled to sixty (60) days maternity leave with half pay;

- d. Temporary employees, including emergency employees who have rendered less than two years of continuous service shall be entitled to a number of days of maternity leave with pay based on the ratio of thirty days of maternity leave to two years of continuous service.

Every married woman faculty or employee who is an expectant mother may go on maternity leave at least fifteen days before the expected date of delivery.

Employees who are expectant mothers should submit applications for maternity leave on the prescribed form duly supported by a medical certificate, through their immediate supervisor, at least three weeks before the effective date of leave.

A married faculty may return to duty on the day following the expiration of her maternity leave of sixty days. She may, however, extend such leave beyond the prescribed sixty-day period. If she chooses to do so, she shall notify the President through channels to make the necessary arrangements for the continuance of the service of the substitute teacher not later than two weeks prior to the termination of the sixty-day period. The extension of the leave shall be without pay and shall not exceed one year, unless the cause of extension is on account of illness for which the leave shall be with or without pay as the case may be subject to the availability of service credits which could be used to offset absence on account of illness. The pay is not, however, commutable.

A faculty on maternity leave may return to duty at any time during the semester after the termination of her leave. Her position shall be relinquished by the substitute teacher upon her return to duty.

If a female employee applies for a leave immediately after the expiration of her maternity leave (sixty days) such leave shall be charged against her vacation and sick leave or service credits, whichever is applicable.

The vacation and service credit of a teacher on the teacher's leave basis may be used to offset absence due to maternity leave without pay. However, her salary corresponding to the period offset by her vacation service credits is not commutable.

When a teacher goes on maternity leave at the beginning of the Christmas vacation, or of the long vacation, she should be granted first the Christmas vacation pay or the long vacation pay, and then the sixty days maternity leave pay.

Proportional vacation pay should not be granted at the time the faculty goes on maternity leave if her leave does not extend to the end of the school year. In computing for long vacation pay for the school year, the period of actual service rendered during the school year including that covered by the maternity leave, as well as the absences offset by vacation service, should be counted as service rendered during the school year.

Section 5: Leave without Pay and Unexplained Absences

Leave of absence without pay, not to exceed one year at a time, shall be granted for good cause. The application for leave of absence should be filed in advance and should be properly timed so as not to interfere with the work of the university; provided, however, that where a leave of absence without pay is applied for in order that the applicant may pursue advanced studies abroad, the University President may direct the Vice President for Academic Affairs or Dean/Director concerned to ascertain whether it would be a more feasible arrangement for the university, in case the application is granted, to allot the functions of the absent faculty member among the remaining members or to employ a substitute, and to make a corresponding report thereof.

Any member of the faculty, officer or employee of the university shall be dropped from the service in case of unexplained continuous absences for a period of six (6) months.

Section 6: Study Privileges

Regular members of the faculty, officers, and other personnel shall have the privilege of enrolling in the University for not more than twelve units a semester and reduced rates of fees in courses that shall be beneficial to their official work in the university, subject to the approval of the President or his designated representative. In the case of non-teaching personnel, the courses shall be taken after office hours. Permission to enroll in more than twelve units a semester may be granted depending upon the merits of each case.

Any employee or part-time faculty enjoying study privileges shall be given 50% tuition fee discount while a regular faculty member shall be given 75% tuition discount.

Any employee who is admitted to the faculty of graduate studies shall, in addition to the authorized discount from tuition, be exempt from the payment of medical and dental fees.

The children of regular employees of the university, faculty or non-faculty, shall be entitled to a 100 percent discount in tuition in high school or college. However, miscellaneous fees shall be paid in full.

ARTICLE 20. RESTRICTIONS

All complaints concerning official duties shall be formally filed with the proper authorities of the University for action, before resorting to any other remedy available to the complaining party.

No member of the university personnel shall, without permission from the President, practice any profession or manage personally any private enterprise which in any way may affect the functions of his office in the university, nor shall he be directly financially interested in any contract with the university unless permitted by the board. Permission to engage in private practice of the profession may be granted only to the university personnel if such private practice may enhance their usefulness to the university or improve their efficiency.

This privilege, when granted, shall be for a definite period of one year, renewable at the discretion of the President.

No member of the faculty on full-time basis may engage in teaching outside of the university without written permission from the President.

No member of the faculty shall have personal business dealings with any student involving money, property or other valuable consideration which might have an influence on the scholastic standing of such student in the university.

No book, outline, compilation or syllabus, whether printed or duplicated shall be used as a required textbook, workbook, or instructional material in any class unless approved by the President.

In so far as it is consistent with their regular duties and if approved by the President, faculty members who are members of the National Research Council and similar organizations may use official time in attending meetings of such institutions.

No member of the faculty may accept invitations to speak or to lecture at other institutions or agencies on official time without the approval of the President.

No full-time member of the faculty shall study in an outside institution without the permission of the President. Permission may be granted only when such study will not impair his efficiency as a member of the faculty.

No member of the faculty may invite any person who is not officially connected with the university to give lecture or talk on any subject before his class or any group of students without permission from the Dean/Director or his duly authorized representative.

Violation of the above restrictions shall be punishable by reprimand, suspension or dismissal from the service.

ARTICLE 21. DISCIPLINARY ACTION

No university faculty, officer and employee shall be suspended and removed except for cause after due investigation and hearing.

Notwithstanding the provision of the preceding article, the President, may suspend any member of the university faculty, officer or personnel during the pendency of the investigation of the administrative charges against him.

The University President may suspend or remove, after due hearing, faculty members, administrative officers and employees without prejudice to an appeal to the Board of Regents within thirty days after receipt of the decision.

History of the Polytechnic University of the Philippines

The Polytechnic University of the Philippines (PUP) started as the Manila Business School (MBS) on October 1, 1904. It was founded in response to the demand for training personnel for government and private service employment. The MBS operated as part of the City School System under the superintendence of G. A. O'Reilly.

The school's first offerings included vocational-technical courses mostly to working students from the provinces. Four years later, the school became a national school and was renamed the Philippine School of Commerce (PSC). PSC offered four-year secondary courses in Commerce in addition to the vocational-technical courses like bookkeeping, stenography, typewriting and telegraphy. In 1917, PSC under the leadership of its Acting Principal Luis F. Reyes, started the night classes to enable the young people with daytime employment acquire further training. However, due to the retrenchment policy of the government in 1932, the night school had to be discontinued and the PSC operations had to be merged with that of the Philippine Normal School and the Philippine School of Arts and Trades in 1933.

The merger did not last for long. In the graduation exercises held at the Rizal Memorial Stadium on March 29, 1940; PSC's existence caught the attention of then President Manuel L. Quezon. In his graduation address to the graduates of the School of Commerce, President Quezon said in part: "I can tell you why you are forgotten on these occasions. It is because you do not belong here... I will do my best to get the National Assembly to set aside a special appropriation for a building for the School of Commerce, so that graduates of this school will henceforth be where they can be noticed." Subsequently, then Congressman Manuel A. Alazarte and PSC Superintendent Luis F. Reyes, presented a bill to Congress to that effect. Unfortunately the Second World War broke out and the plan for the separation of the PSC from the merger was not carried out.

After the war on August 4, 1946, PSC resumed regular classes using the Normal Hall building and offered one-year and two-year courses in retailing, merchandising and a four-year course in distributive arts education. A year later, PNS found it necessary to use the Normal Hall as dormitory compelling the PSC Superintendent Luis Reyes to make representations to the Philippine Alien Property Administrator through Malacanang and the Department of Foreign Affairs for the acquisition of its own spaces. Two old government buildings at Lepanto and S.H. Loyola Streets in Sampaloc District of Manila were turned over for the exclusive use of the PSC.

The notable performance of its graduates who were hired by both public offices and the private companies of the post-war era led to the broadening of course offerings which included undergraduate courses in commerce and allied fields. In 1952, by virtue of Republic Act 778, PSC became the Philippine College of Commerce (PCC) with a thrust in business and commerce. In 1955, PCC received the recognition from the Business Writers Association of the Philippines as “The Business College of the Year.” In the years 1956 to 1961, Prof. Pacifico A. Velilla and Atty. Victor Dela Torre assumed their respective offices as PCC presidents succeeding Pres. Luis Reyes.

In 1962, Dr. Nemesio E. Prudente took over as PCC President. The Prudente presidency was another period of further institutional growth with the offering of more liberal arts and cultural courses; installation of the Certified Public Accountants Review Class; the introduction of the scholarship, student assistantship and public relations programs; codification of the school’s rules and regulations; and the launching of the Faculty Journal. Faculty promotion was likewise rationalized. School spaces correspondingly expanded with the assignment of a 10-hectare lot in Taguig and the Mabini Campus site in Sta. Mesa, Manila for PCC use.

The rise of the nationalist movement in the country especially in school campuses in the late 1960's gave more impetus to the realization of the progressive vision and goals of President Prudente for PCC. Student participation in the school's decision-making was made possible with the appointment of president of the Supreme Student Council as member of the Board of Trustees. The adoption of RA 6980 in 1968 paved the way to PCC's offering of social sciences such as Bachelor of Arts and Master of Arts. Nationalist-oriented student publications, writers' alliances, cultural groups, and political mass organizations of faculty and students were encouraged and supported by the administration in recognition of academic freedom. PCC's high profile involvement in the nationalist movement was used as justification of the Marcos administration to include Prudente among the first targets of its crackdown on prominent anti-Marcos figures in 1972 and throughout the martial law era.

With Narciso Albaracin as Officer-in-Charge in 1972 followed by Isabelo T. Crisostomo in 1973 and Dr. Pablo S. Mateo in 1977; curricular and structural changes were implemented. The Faculty of Arts and Sciences was abolished (it was re-established in 1976) and other faculties were re-organized. The new offerings included courses in technology and techno-business, Bachelor of Business Administration and General Administration, and Masters Programs in Public Administration and Economics. Short courses were strengthened and became degree courses. A branch in the Bataan Export Processing Zone was established in 1975. New facilities were constructed such as the gymnasium and other sports facilities, the Center for Skills and Rural Industries Development and the PUP Pylon. By the end of the 70's decade, the transformation of the school from a being a college to be the first polytechnic university in the country was achieved. The passage of Presidential Decree 1341 in 1978 provided for the conversion of PCC into a chartered state university and its renaming as the Polytechnic University of the Philippines (PUP).

As a polytechnic university, there were further broadening of course offerings, re-structuring and establishment of new academic and administrative units, and expansion of physical facilities and territories. In addition to the offering of more graduate and undergraduate programs under new disciplines were the creation of the Institute of Technology, establishment of more branches and satellite campuses in the different Luzon provinces in partnership with local government units, and expansion of external linkages through consortia and signing of memorandum of agreement with both local and foreign educational and development institutions.

Ferdinand Marcos' martial rule ended with the triumph of the EDSA People Power in 1986. Upon release from detention, Prudente was re-installed as PUP President. In this resumption of his presidency and through the three decades that followed with the leadership of his successors namely Dr. Zenaida A. Olonan (1992-1997), Dr. Ofelia M. Carague (1998-2002), Dr. Samuel M. Salvador (2003-2004), and Dr. Dante G. Guevarra (2005-2011); the institution pursued its pioneering and pro-people development perspectives. The Open University was established and nontraditional study programs both in the undergraduate and graduate school levels were offered. New programs and faculties included Sociology; Philosophy; Political Science; Cooperatives; Civil, Mechanical, Computer, Computer Engineering, Electronics and Electrical Engineering; Education; Hospitality and Transportation Management; and Chemistry among others.

PUP closed the century and welcomed the new millennium with a vigorous computerization program and the establishment of the PUP Information Technology Center. The launching of the Student Information System made PUP one of the first state universities to have computerized admission and registration of students. In 2011, PUP was awarded by the Professional Regulatory Commission as the Third Best Performing School in Nutrition and Dietetics. The research, publications and extension tasks of PUP were strengthened by the establishment of research centers in various disciplines and the adoption of the University Research Agenda as enshrined in the University Research Manual. Memoranda of Agreements with external partners for engagements and linkages were likewise forged towards more usefulness of researches and expertise of the faculty to the communities and society in general.

In 2012, Dr. Emanuel C. De Guzman was appointed PUP President and became the first PUP alumnus to hold the top university position. Under his administration, even more remarkable strides in the academics (including performance in the licensure examinations), research and extension were recorded. Majority of the academic programs have passed Levels 2 and 3 accreditation by the Accrediting Association of Chartered Colleges and Universities of the Philippines (AACCUP). Survey ratings of industries with regard their preference for PUP graduates continually rose. For two consecutive years, in 2015 and 2016, PUP graduates were rated the most preferred by employers.

As of August 2017, the University boasts of 92 academic programs offered in the main campus, nine branches and thirteen satellite campuses. True to its mandate, the University has touched the lives of thousands of Filipino families in urban and rural communities. It is committed to persistently soar high in pursuit of excellence and responsiveness of its academic and non-academic programs in the name of service to the nation.
